

After a hurricane has passed

Even though it may be safe to leave your house or the emergency shelter, remain cautious and follow safety guidelines provided by local officials. Stay away from flooded areas, fallen power lines, and debris. Assess your surroundings and follow the directions of emergency officials.

REMEMBER:

Be aware of potential hazards, such as weakened building structures or dirty standing water.

